Companion text for simple English: Frankenstein told in the Point of View of the Creature

Foreword:

This section of the book is a summary, not told in the Creature's point of view. This is a companion text designed to help readers understand what the Creature is saying in the story.

Chapter 1: Awakening

The creature opens his eyes in darkness. Victor Frankenstein flees in fear, leaving him abandoned. Cold and confused, he cries but no one comes.

Chapter 2: His First Steps

The creature tries to walk but collapses. Stones cut his skin; hunger twists his belly. He sobs alone in the endless cold hall.

Chapter 3: The Fire

The creature discovers fire’s glow. Warmth comforts him but touching it burns. Confused and hurt, he hides trembling, alone again.

Chapter 4: People

The creature approaches a house seeking friendship. People scream, throw stones and shut doors. He cries, realizing adults despise him.

Chapter 5: The Child

The creature meets a smiling child. Joy blossoms briefly until adults intervene. The child is taken, leaving him heartbroken and lonely.

Chapter 6: Hate

The creature faces a shouting man. Rage awakens; he smashes wood and stone. The man flees, leaving only hatred inside him.

Chapter 7: Snow

The creature trudges through deep snow. Wind stings his face, hunger gnaws. He remembers the child’s smile but feels only emptiness.

Chapter 8: The Cave

The creature hides inside a cave. He dreams of warmth and safety. Hunger returns, and his sobs echo in the dark.

Chapter 9: Fire Again

The creature watches fire from afar. Its warmth tempts him, but burns haunt his memory. His heart feels torn between comfort and fear.

Chapter 10: Food To Eat

The creature steals food from people. He tastes life briefly, but they attack him. Fleeing, he remains hungry and alone.

Chapter 11: The River

The creature drinks from a river. He sees his reflection and cries. His ugly face fills him with despair.

Chapter 12: The Moon

The creature gazes at the moon. He feels hope and dreams of warmth. Awakening, he finds himself cold and yearning.

Chapter 13: The Hut

The creature enters a hut. People scream and drive him away. His heart aches for belonging he cannot find.

Chapter 14: The Song

The creature hears people singing. He hums clumsily but is rejected. Running away, he cries, longing for a voice of his own.

Chapter 15: The Book

The creature finds a book. He cannot read its words. He weeps, rages, and longs for knowledge and understanding.

Chapter 16: The Dog

The creature befriends a dog. Warmth fills his heart briefly. Humans intervene, and grief overwhelms him when the dog is lost.

Chapter 17: The Storm

Thunder booms around him. The creature roars with the storm. Trees smash; fury mirrors his pain. Wild power surges, but sorrow remains.

Chapter 18: Hungry

The creature eats leaves and worms. Bitter tastes bring no comfort to him. He cries, longing for companionship more than food.

Chapter 19: The Chase

The creature is pursued by people. Stones strike and blood flows. He roars; hatred grows, love denied.

Chapter 20: His Dream

The creature dreams of the child. Warmth fills him in sleep. Awakening, he cries, clinging to hope.

Chapter 21: His Hate For Fire

The creature is pushed into fire. Burns scar him deeply. He flees, distrusting warmth and growing in rage.

Chapter 22: The Mountain

The creature climbs a mountain. Snow bites and echoes surround him. The vast world feels empty and lonely.

Chapter 23: The Child Is Back

The creature sees the child again. He remembers the child but adults intervened, much like déjà vu. Heartbreak returns and sorrow deepens.

Chapter 24: Hate Grows

The creature remembers cruelty. Rage builds inside him. He smashes trees, his heart darkens, despair consumes.

Chapter 25: The Long Night

The creature wanders through the night. The moon gets covered by clouds, he stumbles and cries. Loneliness echoes endlessly.

Chapter 26: The Voice

The creature hears a gentle voice. Warmth fills him as he listens. He dreams of friendship and hope.

Chapter 27: Not the End

The creature grows weak but dreams persist. His heart still beats. Yearning continues, his story unfinished. He waits for a sequel for the story, Frankenstein told in the Point of View of the Creature 2.
